ARCHITECTURAL NOTES:

The brick mansion stands on a high basement, and, in addition to a first and a second storey, has a large attic with four rooms. The chimneys, two at each gable, have parapets between them. The principal entrance to the house is by a horseshoe stair with stone steps and an exquisite wrought-iron rail. At the rear of the house is an odd motif consisting of a narrow door and window together under a circular transom.

The hallway, less than seven feet wide, is made still narrower by freestanding Ionic columns, holding blocks of entablature from which springs an elliptical arch. At the end of the Living Room are engaged elliptical arches with the same kind of column and block.

PART II. ARCHITECTURAL INFORMATION

A. General Statement:

1. Architectural character: The Davenport House is a fine example of Transitional Federal Architecture.
2. Condition: good. Restored from 1956 to 1960 by Historic Savannah Foundation, Inc.

B. Description of Exterior:

1. Overall dimensions: Two-and-one-half stories over a raised basement, approximately 48' x 40'.
2. Foundations: Brick.
3. Wall construction: Brick bearing walls.
4. Porches: The main entrance stair has double-curve (horse-shoe) stairs and a decorative wrought iron railing with scrollwork medallion.
5. Chimneys: There are four end chimneys flush with the exterior walls.
6. Openings:
 - a. Doorways and doors: The entrance doorway has a six-panel door with sidelights and full elliptical fanlight.
 - b. Windows: Typical windows are six-over-six light double hung wooden sash. The windows have limestone sills and lintels.
7. Roof:
 - a. Shape, covering: The gable roof has a complex form with gabled parapets and dormers.

C. Description of Interior:

1. Floor plans:
 - a. First floor: A central hall with a circular stairway at the rear. There are two large rooms at the front and two at the rear of the house.
 - b. Second floor: A central hall with two large rooms at the front of the house and two small rooms at the rear.

c. Attic: Floor plan similar to that of the second floor.

2. Stairways: The main circular wooden stairway is mahogany.

Stairs to the basement are located behind the main stair.

3. Flooring: The floor is pine boards, 6' wide.

4. Wall and ceiling finish: The walls are plaster on the first and second floors and horizontal wooden planks (18" wide) on the third.

The ceilings on the first and second floors are plaster, and that on the third is wood.

5. Doorways and doors: Typical doors on the first floor are six-panel, painted wood. The six-panel varnished doors on the second and attic floors appear to be original.

6. Decorative features: The east room of the first floor has a molded plaster cornice and a large center medallion. The top of the projecting plaster molding of the arch in the east room is inscribed "George Smith, September 1822".

The east room on the first floor has a white marble mantel. There are wooden mantels on the fireplaces in the two small rooms on the first floor.

The four fireplace mantels on the second floor are wooden.

7. Heating: Originally heated by wood burning fireplaces.

D. Site:

1. General setting: The house faces east on State Street and is situated at the northeast corner of Columbia Square.

2. Landscaping: There is a garden to the east and to the north of the house.
